Mount Sinai, NY - With students, faculty, administrators and members of the board of education present, Suffolk County Legislator Sarah Anker presented Mount Sinai Middle School with a proclamation to honor the school's achievement of receiving the 2012 National Blue Ribbon Award.

Mount Sinai Middle School was one of 269 schools nationwide that received this impressive distinction. The award is reserved for schools that demonstrate high academic excellence or are working to close the achievement gap.

"Mount Sinai Middle School exemplifies the best in our public education system—from its hard working students and highly qualified teachers to its strong and caring school leaders and supportive parents and community members," said Legislator Anker. "This is a shining example of how much can be accomplished when we all work together to provide children the best education possible."
