Legislator D'Amaro Informs Residents:

Suffolk County Sponsored Job Fair to be Held At North Babylon Public Library on January 28

(NORTH BABYLON... January 20, 2010) -- In these uncertain economic times, Suffolk County Legislator Lou D'Amaro (D-North Babylon) wants to remind community members that, under the auspices of the Suffolk County Workforce Investment Board, the County offers a variety of programs to assist residents in their job searches through the One-Stop Employment Center. Among the services available are the County's award-winning Job Fairs, with the next one scheduled for Thursday, January 28 at the North Babylon Public Library, 815 Deer Park Avenue in North Babylon from 10 am – 1 pm.

"The Job Fairs offer a unique opportunity for prospective employees and employers to meet and exchange information in a comfortable yet professional atmosphere," said Legislator D'Amaro.

Employers will have information on part time and full time positions and job seekers are asked to bring their resumes and "dress for success." For more information and locations of other upcoming Job Fairs or Suffolk County One-Stop Employment Center services including workshops, job placement assistance and career counseling, visit the website at www.suffolkcountyny.gov/labor or call (631) 853-6600.
