array of local professionals at the annual HIA-LI Business Excellence Awards Luncheon, held on September 16th at the Crest Hollow Country Club.

For 20 years, the HIA-LI (www.hia-li.org) has been annually recognizing business excellence among Long Island organizations that are demonstrating achievements in industry leadership, creativity, business operations, corporate vision and other factors necessary to develop, grow and maintain winning and successful organizations. Awards and finalists are named in four categories: Large Business, Small Business, Not for Profit and Rookie of the Year.

Compass Workforce Solutions (CWS), a human resource consulting firm based in Melville, was named the “Rookie of the Year” recipient and Legislator D’Amaro was pleased to present a County Proclamation to Founding Principal Christine Ippolito. “Rookie of the Year” is awarded to a company that has been operating less than five years yet has already shown impressive growth and commitment to the Long Island business community.

“In just a few years, Compass Workforce Solutions, under the dedicated direction of Christine Ippolito, has established itself as an important player in the Long Island business community,” said Legislator D’Amaro. “Ms. Ippolito and her company are well-deserving recipients of this award.”
